Why Not a Harvest Shopping Carnival in Crossfield Again This Year? Others Have!

It would appear that things in Crossfield are almost at a standstill. On looking over other weekly papers, we find that towns along the line are doing something towards creating interesting business and entertainment to keep shoppers away from the cities, thus encouraging home-shopping and keeping up the prevalent community spirit.

Undoubtedly our town is too close to Calgary to enable our merchants to stock up heavily, cut prices beyond reason and keep our business here, but why not do something about it?

Having had experience we, the merchants of the fair Village of Crossfield, understand the public and know what the individual expects. Therefore, we suggest another shopping carnival such as the people of Crossfield and district have never dreamt of. Is it not possible to create a bit of business in town? Suppose some of the district boosters meet the merchants half way; success, in at least one shopping event, would be met with.

Would it not be possible for our Dramatic Society to get together, prepare a good programme for the evening or evenings during the shopping carnival, and then, yes, then?

What a grand and glorious feeling it would be to realize that home people were patronizing home merchants; merchants who expend earnest efforts to give the best of service. If they have not the volume of business necessary to maintain their business, it is impossible to undersell the city merchants.

Let us think it over and have a shopping carnival this fall. It can be arranged by the middle of November, but it will mean, "Get at it NOW".

WHAT WE MAKE IT?

If you want to live in the kind of a town
That you want your town to be,
You can't sit around like a moss-grown log
As dead as the dead Dead Sea.
You can't just grouch and criticize
And call your neighbour a sap.
Nor pull back like a balky mule
If you want your town on the map.
The thing to do is co-operate,
And trade with your grocer and baker,
And boost along as you go along
A town is just what you make 'er.
I'd like to see what a town could be
If folks all pulled together.
With a will to work and none to shirk
Be it fair or stormy weather.

Snow-Blocked Roads Make Crossfield A Busy Little Centre

Local Young Men Do Gallant Deeds

Much to the surprise of the people, two inches of snow was found on the ground early Sunday morning, October 22nd, and by evening much more had fallen. On Monday it was reported that the depth was 15 inches. The snow was very damp and will add greatly to the moisture for next year, but certainly halted threshing operations.

Monday evening the three Hopper brothers and Corporal Cameron were busy assisting victims of the blocked roads to get under cover, many of which were taken to the Scott farm on the highway, just east of town. On one occasion, when the victims included a small boy who had no shoes on and his feet were almost frozen, Earl Hopper removed his own mitts and placed them on the boy's feet and he was safely taken to shelter. Earl is worthy of great credit for this deed. The four stalwarts, Corporal Cameron, Earl, Don and Charlie Hopper laboured from about 8:00 p.m. Monday until 9:30 Tuesday morning, when snow plows managed to get through and open the roads.

It was reported that about 250 cars, trucks and buses were stalled on the highway between Calgary and Crossfield. One truck was reported to have had a frozen radiator.

For the 23rd of October, this is the most severe snow storm experienced for a number of years.

Credit is due the citizens in town for the way in which the walks have been cleared off and it is again possible to go to and from work without having to plow in snow.

During the snow-blocked experience, the little village of Crossfield was a busy centre as many were unable to leave and made their stay with friends and in the hotel and cafes.

This is perhaps the biggest snow storm in twenty years, but the most drastic experience is that only about 65 percent of the threshing has been done in the district.

The World of Wheat.

By H. G. L. Strange

Viscount Gort Commander-in-Chief of the British Army in France, has just expressed his belief that men and not machines will win the war.

This is in keeping with the conviction of all the great commanders of the past; and military history reveals clearly that it was the infantryman with his bayonet, or the ancient foot soldier with his sword who finally won battles. War machines such as armoured cars, tanks, and aircraft all, of course, now render valuable help, but it is still the foot soldier who will decide the final issue.

But just as war machines require fuel in the shape of good oil, so will Viscount Gort's men require fuel in the shape of good food. The last war showed un-

Cecil B. DeMille "Radio Theatre" Producer

Cecil B. DeMille, "Radio Theatre" producer and motion picture director, draws from nearly four decades of entertainment experience to present this award-winning radio and screen dramas. His career is as colorful as any to be found in the history of American show business, for he has achieved notable success as actor, playwright, manager and producer. Influential in shaping new techniques in films and radio, his methods time and again have broken box office records and won radio awards and polls.

Cecil B. DeMille was born in Ashfield, Mass., on August 12, 1881. He learned the groundwork of his profession from his father, who wrote many plays with the late David Belasco.

After his father's death, his mother turned the DeMille home into a school for girls. Income from this provided for Cecil's preparatory training at the Pennsylvania Military Academy and sent his brother, William, to Columbia University.

"C.B." studied at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts and, at the turn of the century, made his stage debut. While touring with southern and Merlowe he met and married Miss Constance Adams of Orange, New Jersey. He was seen as leading man in such plays as "The Prince of Chap", "Lord Chumley" and "The Warrens of Virginia".

DeMille gave up acting to become manager of a play brokerage his mother had organized and, along about this time, wrote "The Stampede". In collaboration with his brother, he also prepared "The Royal Mounted".

At a chance meeting with another producer, Jesse Lasky, questionably that the German soldiers toward the end were severely weakened by poor food, by their tough indigestible black bread; whereas the British soldiers maintained their full vigour to the last, mainly because they had an ample supply of excellent white bread—without any bran or shorts in it—and made to a great extent from high quality Canadian wheat.

Great Britain and her Allies now have command of the greater part of the world's good oil and good wheat, which is a fortunate thing for all of us.

they discussed the possibilities of a new industry—the films. They realized they might lose everything they had in the world, but took a chance filmed "The Squaw Man" with Dustin Farnum, and followed this success with others. In two years as independent producers, they were on top of the heap.

DeMille has directed and produced more than 60 outstanding film plays in the past 27 years. He did much to induce stage stars to perform before cameras, and has developed many film stars.

When he entered radio four years ago, DeMille brought a wealth of original ideas to "Radio Theatre" dramatizations, heard over CFAC Monday, 7:00 to 8:00 p.m., designed for the ear only.

The subtle insinuations he devised for scene shifting, use of lighting effects to help actors capture feeling of the passage of time along with musical interludes and a reputation for being a stickler for accuracy and detail have won him an enviable name in the ranks of radio.

Around Field And Barn.

By E. M. C.

I notice that our entertaining
Water Valley correspondent remarks that according to a book
he has been reading, England had no national debt before and until the Bank of England was established in 1694, adding that
"England fought wars before that time but incurred no perpetual debt."

He does not trouble to tell us
how and above all, the Bank was founded.

Just what impression "W.V." wishes to leave by his incomplete remark is not clear, but I have my suspicions. However until such time as he cares to amplify his comment, I will just remind him that the Indians fought wars without incurring perpetual debt, that previous to the creation of a very necessary national debt, perpetual pensions were impossible, and, where are the Indians?

In 1694 "experts" were not available, and there were no perpetual provincial politicians, with perverse policies to perturb other perpetually perplexed provincial politicians.

Without perpetual debt, there would be perpetual poverty which

Voluntary Registration Of Canadian Women

The Voluntary Registration of Canadian Women is taking place throughout the whole Province of Alberta. Women everywhere realize that this registration is a survey of the qualifications of Canadian women rather than their enlistment for active work. It has been made clear by the V.R.C.W. that if a woman has registered, and volunteered for a certain type of work but finds that sometime later that she is unable to qualify, then the registration is not binding. But women everywhere are seeing more clearly their individual responsibility in bringing about conditions that will help to change the world to the sort of place we would like to live. Women who have homes and families to care for are not expected to neglect their nearest duties for work far afield. There is no more important work for women to do than that of caring loving ly and thoughtfully for their families and homes, but all women in this national crisis are anxious to contribute their service to their country. The V.R.C.W. registration form will be an indication of what additional help a Canadian woman might be able to give if the occasion arose, and her circumstances have not changed in the meantime. By registering with the V.R.C.W. women will not be removed from the work they are already doing, unless they themselves would so desire.

When the forms are signed they will be card indexed. Three copies will be made. One will go to the Government, another to the National Committee of the V.R.C.W., the third to each Province.

The Federated Womens' Institutes of Canada have approved of this plan of V.R.C.W.

Women!! Canada needs your help. See that you register immediately at your nearest centre.

September, 1939

In appealing for the application of the principles of Moral Re Armament to meet the national emergency, Sir Herbert Stanley, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Southern Rhodesia, The Hon. Mr. Flynn, Acting Premier, The Hon. Sir Alexander Russell, Chief Justice, and The Hon. Robert Tredgold, K.C., Minister of Justice and Defence, said:

"What peace can be found even out of the battle for principles if victors and vanquished cease to live these principles the moment it becomes difficult? Where greed and fear pervade our business activity, where pride and prejudice dominate our attitudes and where self-indulgence and lust undermine home life there can be no lasting peace for individuals or nations.

"We wish every citizen to undertake as his first duty to God and for his country's future a searching self-examination along these lines—am I always guided by principles alone or do expediency, fear, greed, lust and exploitation sometimes determine my conduct? Am I willing to face my lapses, put them right and be guided always by the voice of God at any cost? This is no new call. It was sounded by Lord Baldwin in his appeal for Moral Re Armament:

"God's Living Spirit calls each nation, like each individual, to its highest destiny, and breaks down the barriers of fear and greed, of suspicion and hatred. This same spirit can transcend conflicting political systems, and reconcile order and freedom, can rekindle true patriotism, can unite all citizens in the service of the nation, and all nations in the service of mankind. 'Thy Will be done on earth' is not only a prayer for guidance, but a call to action. For His Will is our peace."

Business goes where it is invited and stays where it is made welcome.

IN CANADA
It's Apple-Time
RIGHT NOW!

JUICY, perfectly-ripened Canadian apples are in . . . fresh from Canada's finest orchards! Plenty of them, too—those that normally would be exported overseas, as well as our own usual, generous supply. And—thanks to the higher minimum grade requirements—there are greater-than-average qualities of the finer, fancier, higher-grade eating apples.

So, all through this year's apple season, order liberal quantities of Canadian apples . . . for eating, cooking, entertaining . . . and for jellying and preserving. You'll enjoy them immensely—and you'll be doing your country a SERVICE at the same time.

And remember, Canadian apples are Government Graded. Ask to see the grade-mark on the container when you buy!

And now for a "Tale of two Farmers".

I recently called upon a certain farmer to ask if he knew that he had Russian Thistle. No! He did not even know what it looked like. Would I show it to him? How much was there? What should he do about it?

We drove down, pulled every plant, brought them back in the car, and burnt them.

He thanked me for letting him know, and that was that.

Some days later I had to call on another farmer, or should I say "a man on a farm". Did he know that he had Russian Thistle? Sure he knew! "It had been there all summer, some there last year." Where had I been "not to have found it before this", what about it? And some people wonder why a Weed Inspector needs to be so "tough".

Which of these would you rather have for a neighbour?
